Dear Prof. Chris Bernido and Prof. Victoria Bernido,

thank you for your email concerning the Jagna Proceedings of the "9th Jagna International Workshop: Stochastic Analysis - Mathematical Methods and Real-World Models." I do apologize for my late response on this matter. At the moment I am writing my paper and I hope I can finish it soon enough. The current situation of pandemic covid-19 somehow drastically change, in particular, the teaching and learning system in our university. The adaptation needs some time and it slows down research activities as well. I am really sorry that I could not finish my paper for the Jagna proceedings on time. Is it still possible if I submit it in one week? I apologize for any inconvenience caused.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,
Herry P. Suryawan

Subject: Proceedings for the 9th Jagna International Workshop

Dear Speakers and Friends,

We hope you and your families are keeping safe during these trying times. Our challenges vary from individual to individual, and country to country, but we have been trying to continue doing science as we look forward to a post-COVID scenario. For some of us, doing science these days is perhaps a way of deriving some comfort from tasks we normally do. Please allow us, therefore, to make a gentle reminder on the papers for publication by the American Institute of Physics (AIP) for the proceedings of the "9th Jagna International Workshop: Stochastic Analysis - Mathematical Methods and Real-World Models."

It would be our honor if you could submit a paper (around 12-15 pages) based on the lecture you presented during the Jagna Workshop. Each paper in this AIP proceedings will be for perpetual open access. We will also give hardbound copies of the proceedings to authors. We would appreciate receiving your paper around April 20 so we could consolidate everything before submitting to AIP.

Instructions for preparing the manuscript may be found at: <https://aip.scitation.org/apc/authors/preppapers>

Thank you very much again for actively participating in the 9th Jagna International Workshop. May you all keep safe during this unparalleled world-wide phenomenon in modern times.

Sincerely yours,
Chris and Victoria Bernido

Dear Colleagues,

Thank you again for contributing a paper for the Proceedings of the 9th Jagna International Workshop which will be published online (open access) and as a printed hardbound volume by the American Institute of Physics (AIP).

We wish to update you that we have reviewed the preliminary PROOF of the Proceedings.

The AIP will be contacting you soon to complete the electronic copyright and for you to provide email addresses of your co-authors into their system.

We will update you again soon on the progress of the AIP Proceedings.
