This research aims at providing the description on the career maturity of the eleventh grade female students of SMA Santa Maria Yogyakarta in 2012/2013 academic year. The results of this research will be used for the base of compiling the suggested topics of career guidance needed by the students.

This research belongs to a descriptive study. The population of this research was the eleventh grade female students of SMA Santa Maria Yogyakarta in 2012/2013 academic year, consisting of 93 students. The research instrument applied here was a career maturity level questionnaire prepared by the researcher himself, based on the career maturity concept introduced by Donald Super. This instrument consists of six aspects of career maturity, i.e. career autonomy, career planning, career exploration, career decision making, career knowledge, and how realistic that career option is. All these six aspects are then mapped into the items included in the research instrument.

The results of this research show that 36 students (54%) are very mature in terms of career, 26 students (39%) are mature in terms of career, 5 students (7%) are mature enough in terms of career, and no students (0%) are less mature and immature in terms of career. In general, the results show that most female students of SMA Santa Maria Yogyakarta in 2012/2013 academic year belong to mature and very mature in terms of career.
