

ABSTRACT

FACTORS AFFECTING PEOPLE
TO COMMUTE AND WORK IN TOWN:
A Case Study at Sumbermulyo,
Bambanglipuro, Bantul
Yogyakarta 1995

Ch. Rita Sri Sumardiati
Sanata Dharma University
Yogyakarta

This thesis aims to find out the factors affecting the people to commute and work in town. The Study was done at Sumbermulyo, Bambanglipuro, Bantul, Yogyakarta.

This is a case study. The samples were accidental sample. They were those whom the writer met and knew. They way to get data was intrview. The data was analyzed by using the Chi-square analysis.

The result say that there are some factors affecting people to commute and work in town. The factors are vast farming land ownership, outcome level in rural area, outcome level in town, scarcity of job opportunity in rural area, non-farming job opportunities in town, friends to give of information and give job in town, age, gender, marital status, distance, transportation facilities, and status of house ownership.