Anies Baswedan and Sandiaga Salahuddin Uno have been sworn in as Governor and Deputy Governor, respectively, of the Indonesian capital on live national television by President Joko “Jokowi” Widodo. It took place at the State Palace complex in Jakarta on Monday (16 October). [They were inaugurated nearly six months after decisively beating the capital's incumbent governor Basuki Tjahaja Purnama.]

After their inauguration at the State Palace, they were scheduled to attend a celebration held in City Hall, Central Jakarta, on Monday afternoon. The city administration also held a handover ceremony at the Balai Agung room. The celebration, which was enlivened by Islamic devotional songs, is scheduled to end by 11 p.m. [local time].

In the meantime, in Twitter social media, the tags #SelamatBekerjaAniesSandi or #GoodluckAniesSandi had become the highest Indonesian trend list during the inauguration. Many of them hoped that both, Anies and Sandiaga, would be able to keep their political promises stated during their gubernatorial campaign.

Even the (Islamic) People’s Consultative Assembly Speaker Zulkifli Hasan wrote in his twitter tweet @Zul_Hasan, “Lead Jakarta by taking good care of all Jakartans. Serve them appropriately whether or not they are supporters. Jakarta governor belongs to all Jakartans #SelamatBekerjaAniesSandi.”
