The Indonesian National Counterterrorism Agency (BNPT) in co-operation with the Financial Transaction Reports and Analysis Centre (PPATK) has published The White Paper on the risks' mapping of the crime of terrorism funding.

According to BNPT chief, Suhardi Alius, the very guidelines have mapped the risks of the crime of terrorism funding conducted by the domestic terrorists' network which are affiliated with ISIS.

During the launching of the book at Aryaduta Hotel, Jakarta (on 27 September), not only did he mention that the book was meant to be used as the guidelines for all ministries and other state institutions in their eradicating and preventing the crimes of funding terrorism from taking place, but he also explained that there could be found in the book all those results of the risks' mapping and recommendations on the prevention as well as on the eradication of the crime of terrorism funding in the country.

"Up to today, ISIS remains the main threat to the safety and security of Indonesia," he stated, adding that it was based on the reports made since 2014 on the increasing numbers of terrorism actions and those crimes of terrorism funding involving ISIS in the country.
