The research entitled The “Banning of Indonesia Raya Newspaper 1968-1974 By The New Order Government”, started from the concerns towards cases of corruption, Power abuse, internal conflicts between the New Order government elites which had been widespread from time to time during the official time of the New Order government. Critical views of the Indonesia Raya newspaper had been an invaluable lesson for the community who had been in the lost , as well as for the ruling elites who had always been the target of the critics.

In order to know the hegemonic power of the state, the research used the theory of Antonio Gramsci that described three limitation of conceptualism concerning the idea of hegemony: economy, the state (political society), and the civil community (civil society). Meanwhile, to describe the frictions between the power of government elites on one side and the press on the other side, the freedom theory which was introduced by Siebert to see that freedom existed based on the harmony between the government and the press, the governmental stability, and the stability of the community as well as the relationship between the press and the people.

The result showed that the New Order Government had the power to control the economic and political strategies of the state, including the state's growing control over the press as the information media for the people (in this case: Indonesia Raya newspaper) which was proven from the various regulations launched by various institutions of the state concerning its publicity.
