The co-ordinator of TPM or the Muslim Lawyers Team, Ahmad Michdan, has clarified the reasons for the team to set up a terrorism research team.

He said Thursday (on 31 May) that during his 18 years of dealing terrorism in the country, there had never been found that their motivation for their actions having to do with changing the state's ideology.

According to him some third party has taken advantage of terrorism cases. There should be a team to make sure that there will be no more terrorism actions imported to the country.

Mentioning that his team has had a hearing with the Commission III of the House of Representatives or DPR, he said that the Commission could meet with the parties in question to find the main motives behind the resent terrorism actions taking place in the country.

Explaining that most terrorist convicts would care for any Muslims who had been unfairly treated, he expected that no-terrorist convicts used to be involved in the violation of human rights.
