The purpose of this research was to find out the difference of attitude between single men and women toward the interfaith marriage. Hypothesis proposed was there is a difference of attitude between the men and women toward interfaith marriage, that the men have more permissive attitude than women do.

The subject of research were 72 single men and women, consisting of 36 single men and 36 single women whose ages around 18-25 years old, had same religion parents, and lived in Yogyakarta. The method of the research was done by giving a scale to the subject that was called the attitude scale. The validity and reliability of the scale had been tested before.

The data was analyzed by using t-test to compare two group of subject, men and women to find out the difference of mean between two groups. The mean of the man group was 124,44 and the woman group was 124,06. The result of t-observation was lower than t-table. Therefore H_0 (there is no difference of single men and women attitude about interfaith marriage) was accepting.

The result of this research shows that there was no difference attitude between single men and women toward the interfaith marriage. Both of had positive attitude about interfaith marriage.
