During his visit to Sukoharjo, Central Java, the running mate of Prabowo in 2019 presidential election, Sandi Salahuudin Uno, has talked about the present economic situation in the country.

He said Saturday (on 22 September) that the present unexpected turbulent economic situation could be handled by the people with their capable leader.

According to him, the first priority is to create jobs as many as possible and to stabilize the affordable goods needed. Not only should the Indonesian leaders be able to understand the grassroots' aspirations, but they should also be able to provide the very people with best solutions.

Mentioning about those mafia of importing foreign goods, he promised to eradicate them all. He also insisted that his administration would be free of corruption with the spirit of enforcing the law.

Questioning the people whether they would dare to vote for him and his running mate Prabowo Subianto, he said that they would otherwise prevent themselves from transforming the nation into prosperous and respectful one.
