Hello,
my name is Aida.
I'm a First Aid Kit.

I give first aid to anyone who has minor wounds. Don't forget, though, you still need to see the doctor if your wounds are very serious.
Do you know what I have inside my big belly?
I have sterilized gauze, antiseptics, bandages, pain
killers, tweezers, eucalyptus oil, and many more.
Do you want to hear more of my stories?
Come with me then!

It was a wonderful afternoon.
I sat on a bench in the park and enjoyed my favorite chocolate ice cream.

There were children playing happily nearby.

“Enzo is a cat... Enzo is a cat!” shouted the children.
They were playing tag and it was Enzo’s turn to be the cat.

“Meow... meow!” shouted Enzo.
He quickly chased his friends.

Suddenly... Wham! Enzo fell.
He tripped on a stone in front of him.

Enzo got up quickly but it was clear that he was in pain.

I saw both of his knees were wounded. They were scraped.

I got up, paid the ice cream, and rushed to Enzo's side to help him.

Enzo's friends stood around me.
They wanted to see what I did.

I checked Enzo's wounds.
Aha, I was right. His knees were scraped.

Firstly, I cleaned the wounds. I cleaned Enzo's scraped knees with clean water and soap.
Secondly, I took sterilized gauze, put some antiseptics on it, and cleaned Enzo's wounds.

Remember, if you don't have sterilized gauze and antiseptics, you can use a clean cloth.

Don't use dry gauze. Dry gauze can stick to the wounds.

Don't put the bandage on before applying antiseptic on the wound.

After I cleaned the wounds, I wiped them with clean cloth. Then, I applied antiseptics on Enzo's knees.

Enzo was a strong boy so he didn't cry one bit.

“See Enzo, your wounds are medicated. Don’t worry, your knees are just scraped. Please be careful next time, okay?” I said, patting his head.

“Yes, Aida. Thank you. Are you going to put bandage on my knees?” asked Enzo.

Hmm... I squinted my eyes, thinking. "Alright. I'll bandage your knees just to be safe," I said.

"You should change the bandages every day. Ask your mother to help you," I continued.

After I bandaged Enzo's wounds, I went back to the bench to relax. The children started playing again.

This time, Enzo became the referee.
It's so nice sitting here and relaxing in the afternoon.
I wondered where the ice cream seller was.

WORK SHEET

Friends, let's connect the dots. What does it say?
Color the picture, too!

Match the pictures on the left with the matching pictures on the right!

Wow, this ice cream is very delicious! How many scoops of ice cream
do you see in the bowl?
Mention the colors, too!

Yay, it's fun playing with friends.
Let's help Enzo find his friends!

Dear friends,
I hope my story can add your knowledge on the use of first aid kit.
So, if you scraped your knees like Enzo did, don't panic. If you want to know more about first aid kit, ask your mom, dad, or other grownups to help you.
See you in the next story....

Oops... Enzo Tripped!

Hello, I'm Aida. I'm a first aid kit.
I like to help my friends who need first aid when they are injured.

As I was relaxing in the park,
some of my friends played hide and seek near where I sat.
Suddenly, Enzo stumbled over a Stone.
I immediately helped him. His knees were scraped and bleeding.
I immediately washed the wound using water and soap.
I also put antiseptic on each knee then rub them smoothly using sterile gauze. Is there anything I need to do then?
Follow the story and get a great guide from this book!

There are some activities that you can do for fun too:
connect the dots and color and match the pictures.
It's so fun!
