ABSTRACT

Nurdini, Maria. 2024. "Environmental Damage in the Selected Short Stories of Kompas 2020: An Ecocritical Study." Thesis: Indonesian Language and Literature Education, Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Sanata Dharma University.

This research is motivated by the pressing issue of environmental damage, which requires efforts to address it. The objectives of this research are: (1) To describe environmental damage in the "Kumpulan Cerpen Pilihan Kompas 2020" (Selected Short Stories of Kompas 2020); (2) To explain the conservation efforts to address environmental damage in the "Kumpulan Cerpen Pilihan Kompas 2020."

This is a qualitative descriptive research. The research object consists of excerpts from the "Kumpulan Cerpen Pilihan Kompas 2020." Data collection techniques are obtained through hermeneutics. Data analysis techniques used include data reduction, data presentation, and drawing conclusions.

The results of the research show: (1) Environmental damage includes air pollution, soil pollution, illegal logging, land use change, poaching, and virus transmission; (2) Conservation efforts include examining attitudes of respect for nature, examining attitudes of moral responsibility toward nature, examining attitudes of solidarity with nature, and examining attitudes of compassion and care for nature. This research is expected to serve as educational material and reflection for maintaining environmental sustainability, as well as a reference for literary studies, particularly literary appreciation, or for developing further research from different perspectives or theories.

Keywords: Environmental damage, ecocriticism, Kompas 2020.
