This undergraduate thesis is entitled "PARENTS' UNDERSTANDING OF THE ROLE OF CHILDREN'S FAITH DEVELOPMENT IN THE ENVIRONMENT OF SAINT ANDREAS MARGOREJO PARISH OF THE HOLY APOSTLES TEGALSARI BELITANG" based on the author's concern for the role and implementation of parental responsibilities in the development of their children's faith. Parents are the first and foremost educators, where the values of Christian life need to be instilled in the child. This thesis delves into parents' understanding of children's faith development. This thesis uses qualitative research methods, namely based on interviews with parents, observation and documentation. This thesis aims to get an overview of parents' understanding of the development of children's faith in the environment of Saint Andreas Margorejo. Through this research, parents understand their role as the main educator in the family, provide support, provide educational guarantees, and the responsibility to teach children to be involved in Church activities, habituate a life of faith in the family such as praying and reading the Holy Scriptures and set a good example for children. But in addition, there are also shortcomings from parents themselves in carrying out their responsibilities, namely, parents are not consistent in giving time, limited time that collides with working hours. Parents already understand their role in the development of children's faith. Parents already understand the assistance that needs to be given to their children, to develop their faith, through various Church activities such as deepening of faith, joint prayer, missionary practice and faith building school activities. So that this activity can support children's faith to grow further.
