This thesis, titled "Description Of Community Prayer Activities for Fostering the Faithful's Active Participation In The Saint Joseph Banyuanyar Community, Mojosongo Parish," aims to describe the faithful's participation in neighborhood prayer and its impact on the development of their faith in the St. Joseph Banyuanyar Neighborhood, St. Aloysius Gonzaga Parish, Mojosongo. Neighborhood prayer is understood as a form of church life at the grassroots community level that serves as a means of fostering fellowship among the faithful and as a vehicle for strengthening their faith through these neighborhood prayer gatherings. This study employs a descriptive qualitative method, using participatory observation and structured interviews as data collection techniques. The research subjects consisted of eight parishioners from the St. Joseph Parish in Banyuanyar, while the data validators included the parish chairman and the liturgy committee chair. Data analysis was conducted through the stages of data reduction, data presentation, and drawing conclusions, and its validity was tested through source validation.

The research findings indicate that community prayer activities in the Santo Yusuf Banyuanyar community are conducted on a regular and structured basis, primarily in the form of Word-centered worship and devotional prayers tailored to the liturgical calendar and the needs of the local congregation. The level of congregational involvement varies, with some members actively participating, while others are limited to attending as participants. To increase the congregation's involvement, ongoing pastoral guidance is needed to improve community prayer. This way, community prayer can have a positive impact, such as enabling the congregation to participate in it, strengthening relationships, and helping one another deepen and live out their faith.
